

YOUR FAILURES LEAD TO SUCCESS

Dear Boys and Girls and of course for u2,

Your Failures lead to Success!! Sounds crazy right???

Think about it. Success rarely comes without failures along the way.

Edison failed over 1,000 times before he finally found the right combination of elements to make a light bulb work.

Make it a habit to look at your failures as stepping stones to success, and make it a habit to look at the opportunities that exist in your failures.

Truly within every failure there lies your solution, an opportunity for you to turn some element of it into a success.

Look at your failures as an indication that you are breaking new ground.

Carole Hyatt says, "If you haven't failed at least three times today, you haven't tried anything new."

Review the steps you took leading up to the failure, very often you will see hidden opportunities.

Get your creative juices flowing:

Innovation, creation, invention, and improvement--whatever you want to call it, it's awfully easy to let it slide to the bottom of your to-do list or lose it by Procrastinating.

Procrastination, meaning to postponement of a job is the foremost enemy of life and to one's growing up.

"We do the same things, the same way, every day". This is a primary barrier to creativity. Conformity to the status quo is a real enemy of creativity. "The real beginning point for creativity is emptying your mind--pushing out the ideas you know to be true", that is thinking 'out of the box'.

"You never know when an idea will occur to you--an idea for a new way or a better way of doing what you're presently doing. As you drive, watch TV, eat lunch, taking bath, ideas pop into your head. Unless you write them down immediately, you will not remember them. Always carry a pocket notepad or even put it in to your mobile and develop it when you are free.

"For every idea there is an opposite idea, and, sometimes, exploring the opposite is where you will find the best ideas."

Check reality, Keep refining, Keep going, Be bold, Be patient, Be Alive : Success embraces you.

In the end, the real secret to creativity is practice

If only we keep questioning what we see and keep looking for creative solutions and ideas, all of us can be much more creative, too."

Kindly leak this secret out to every one of your friends!!!
